

The University College Community (UCC) has created a new and improved adult-friendly website to direct current students and to attract adult learners to degree completion programs at Rutgers-New Brunswick. The site now provides inspiring testimonials and self-assessment tools to focus in on one's academic interests and career goals. It also provides important information and resources for busy adults. The site helps adult and nontraditional learners navigate the resources that are available to them at Rutgers. Take a look at our website today: <http://ucc.rutgers.edu/>

Are You a Nontraditional Student?

Click to learn more.

Dedicated to serving the needs of adult, nontraditional students at Rutgers—New Brunswick.

Full-time, part-time, anytime: We are here.

Dean's Spring 2013 Welcome

Hello and Happy New Year! My name is Susan J. Schurman. I am the Dean of the University College Community, Professor and Dean in the School of Management and Labor Relations. I also chair the Professional Schools' Academic Oversight Committee for the New Brunswick Campus. I'd like to take this opportunity to offer a heartfelt Rutgers welcome to our new adult and nontraditional students and welcome back our continuing on-campus and off-campus students.

UCC is aware that adult and nontraditional students (NTS) must meet various responsibilities at home and at work while making extra efforts to reach their academic goals. We also know the value of successfully completing a college degree, not just in financial terms, but also in terms of personal development and social change.

Our ongoing goal is to reach adult and nontraditional students because we know that they face significant non-academic responsibilities that make their college years very different from the traditional college experience. Our first task is to reach nontraditional students to make sure that they are informed of important developments, events, resources, services, dates, and major and minor programs that are available evenings, weekends, and online. UCC also helps guide nontraditional students to vital web information to enhance their experience at Rutgers University in a more effective and efficient manner. In addition, we advocate for nontraditional students inside the larger Rutgers University community by recommending policies and programs to meet their specific needs.

This past fall, we participated in adult recruitment, orientations, transition programs, and Veteran outreach initiatives. We are especially pleased with our contribution to the formation of two new degree-completion programs designed specifically for adult, nontraditional students who are admitted directly to the School of Management and Labor Relations to pursue the Bachelor of Science \(BS\) degree in Labor & Employment Relations, and the Edward J. Bloustein School of Planning and Public Policy for the Bachelor of Science degree in Public Health. Our goal is to create a sense of community for those students who do not live on campus and who have significant responsibilities outside of academia.

Sincerely,

Veterans News & Events

The Veterans Appreciation Dinner will be held on Thursday, April 4, 2013.

UCC NONTRADITIONAL STUDENT HIGHLIGHT

Sergeant Major Anthony Spadaro, 49, who continues his active duty service after twenty-seven years in the United States Marine Corps, has made his “virtual” way back from San Diego, California, to Rutgers-New Brunswick after three decades, all through the online degree completion program with the School of Management and Labor Relations. A graduate of St. Joseph High School in Metuchen, Sgt. Spadaro says, “I entered Rutgers in 1981 with three goals: to play lacrosse, to have fun, and to graduate. Achieving two out of three made me realize by 1984 that graduation was not in the cards. I entered the Marine Corps, and since that time I have truly served in ‘every clime and place’ throughout the world.” As the Sergeant Major of the Third Marine Aircraft serving as the senior enlisted leader to more than 18,000 personnel, Sgt. Spadaro recently returned from a year-long deployment in Afghanistan, which was his third combat deployment. At that time, he married, and he now resides in Carlsbad, California, with his wife, Kathryn, of two years.

Sgt. Maj. Anthony Spadaro

Sgt. Spadaro admits that, “The maturity lacking 27 years ago has been replaced by a desire to achieve my life goals and to pursue further educational opportunities that will enhance my ‘second act’ upon retirement from the Marine Corps in 2015.” When asked about the challenges he encountered in trying to balance work, family, and education, Sgt. Spadaro commented, “There are no such things as challenges – only opportunities to confront and succeed.” Having been blessed with a second opportunity to attend Rutgers, he says, “In order to succeed, you have to find the balance which includes weighing work responsibilities with school responsibilities, often at the expense of personal time. One has to look for the reward in any endeavor. My work requirements involve extensive travel throughout the globe, so I have to find that balance between work and school. My reward will be to finally call myself a graduate of Rutgers.” He confesses that he is not the biggest fan of online learning and would much prefer to be in a real live classroom but, because of his geographical location, it is a means to an end: “The instructors involved in the on-line classes ensure enough involvement to make it feel like a ‘live’ classroom.” Sgt. Spadaro exclaims that his experience at Rutgers has been “INCREDIBLE”! The entire staff has been understanding and accommodating.”

As parting advice to all fellow veterans, adults and nontraditional learners, he says, “The key is to communicate early and often with your Professors because they are understanding and approachable. Students will gain so much more from their experience by communicating.” Sgt. Spadaro says that he still finds occasions for fun, but this time it is in “pursuit of the perfect golf course, the best groomed ski run, and the endless waves.”
